SNOOK & CO.'S

Greatest Silk Sale

Begins to-day. If you miss it you lose this season's grandest Silk opportunity, as never before have we offered Silks so cheaply. Read further:

Arnold, Constable & Co., of New York City, are to-day the Silk Leaders of that city. Their business is over almost before ours begins, and they are just as anxious to sell at the season's close as we are. Recently we made them a very low offer on two large lots of FANCY SILKS (some 100 styles, about 4,000 yards), embracing this season's newest effects—a most comprehensive and inviting range, from which it is possible to please ANY TASTE for ANY PURPOSE. To shorten the story, will simply add that this grand collection of Silks, worth all the way from $1.25 to $2.50 yard, will be sold this way:

LOT 1, CHOICE 69c Yd.LOT 2, CHOICE 98c Yd.

In making this great purchase we realized that it would be impossible to sell our regular stock goods at anything like their value, hence prices on all Silks in stock have been reduced to correspond as near as possible to the above named extraordinary values. We expect a rush and have prepared for it. Goods will be shown with pleasure. Hurry, if interested!

THEY OBJECT.

River Men Opposed to the New Yacht Ferry.

ENCROACHMENTS ON THE WHARF

Should Cease, They Claim—Already there is a Scarcity of Room at the Public Landing—A Meeting of the Wharves Committee Held Last Night—Committee Declines to Reconsider its Previous Recommendation—Steamboat Interests Entered a Protest.

Last night a special meeting of the council committee on wharves was held, at which Chairman Bucey occupied the chair and Messrs. Baird and Horkheimer were present. The meeting had been called at the request of Captain John Crockard, master of the Wheeling wharfbot, in order that the protest of the river interests against the granting of a franchise for another yacht ferry might be heard.

Captain Crockard called the attention of the committee to the gradual encroachment upon the limits of the public landing by railroads and yacht ferries. The large business transacted by the steamboats at this point requires all the space within the original limits of the wharf, and council should not allow the already limited room to be further cut down, particularly as the establishment of a yacht ferry at the upper end of the landing will serve no particular purpose. The ferry would run under the steel bridge. If there were not two bridges and a ferry within a stone's throw of the proposed ferry line, there would be an argument in its favor—as it is there is none.

The committee, at its previous meeting, had recommended to council that the application for a yacht ferry line at the upper end of the landing be granted. After a discussion at last night's meeting, the committee decided it would not change its recommendation. However, the forces arrayed against the ferry will continue their fight before council.

Aside from the space that will be used at the wharf, the rivermen object to the new ferry because it would occupy the steamboat landing at the foot of Ohio street, island, which is often used by steamers. With a light float at the foot of this street, the steamboats would be unable to make landings there.

The steamboat people believe council will not further encroach upon the wharf by granting the proposed franchise, and believe that the business people of the city will aid them in their efforts to defeat the project. The latter, they say, know the advantage of having cheap water transportation in competition with the railroads and are not disposed to hamper the steamboatmen.
